

SHARE A PARK.
SHAPE A LIFE.

WELCOME TO NATIONAL PARK WEEK!

April 17-25, 2010 – FREE Admission All Week

Each year we take this time to celebrate what we all have inherited as Americans – 84 million acres of the world’s most spectacular scenery, historic landmarks and cultural treasures. Together we are owners of this land. The National Park Service and National Park Foundation work to preserve and protect it – so that people today, and future generations, can enjoy the power and majesty of these places.

This National Park Week, we invite you to celebrate your ownership. Visit the parks, volunteer in them, and most importantly – pass them on to our youth. Bring a young person to one of our nearly 400 national parks and see their eyes light up when you tell them they are already a part owner of the grandest canyon in the nation or the largest trees in the world. Let them experience history by standing in the shadow of the Washington Monument or touching the soil at the Flight 93 National Memorial.

Want to get involved? It’s easy. This National Park Week, and in honor of Earth Day, help guarantee the future of our environment and the legacy of our American history – share a park, and shape a life.
